Insurecom announces recruitments to prepare for growth

22 January 2009

Insurecom, the general insurance software house, has made a series of new appointments across the business as a result of intensive business and operational change in the second half of 2008.

Insurecom's chief executive Phillip Walter said: "The hard work and investment over the past three years has paid off. The Company is profitable, we have no debt, and we have a full orders book. Mid year we made a decision to recruit a number of highly experienced process-savvy management into the business to prepare for our next phase of business expansion."

Rod Britton has joined the company as the chief financial officer. Rod is a technology company growth specialist, and will be responsible for Insurecom's next expansion phase.

David Daiches originally joined Insurecom toward the middle of 2008, and has now been promoted to chief operations officer. Prior to joining Insurecom, Mr Daiches held senior positions at a number of blue chip companies including Sainsburys and BT.

Hilary Scott joins the company as the software development manager. She was recruited from a role where she was working on the largest .NET bespoke development project in the UK.

In addition, Chris Moseley has been promoted to strategic relations director. Mr Moseley's insurer team will continue to expand with some other well-known industry figures joining shortly. Meanwhile, Nick Wright has joined the Insurecom as the product manager, and Helen Baldwin has been promoted to the role of implementation manager. Insurecom is also in the process of recruiting a new senior director of sales and software solutions.

Mr Walter added: "Insurecom made a decision in 2004 to commence a development initiative to build a completely new enterprise software solution that could be further built upon and serve us for the decade ahead. We're the only general insurance software house to undertake such a task, and late last year this project reached 'foundation-level' and received its version 2.0 badge of honour. The two year plan for this project is really exciting. The post-consolidation and multi-software system headaches that many brokers experienced proved to be a prosperous target market for us last year, and it is now the correct time to bring the right team of people with large-company experience onboard."
